

Quotes from All In supporters:

“Homelessness is a complex issue that can only be addressed by working collaboratively with every sector of our community. The Giants are proud to be a part of this effort because everyone should have a safe place to call home and as community leaders it is our responsibility to help be part of the solution.”

— Staci Slaughter, Executive Vice President of Communications, San Francisco Giants

“We are all people. We are all a paycheck away. Don't turn a blind eye.”

— Tiffany Jackson, Employment Program Manager, Hospitality House

“Levi Strauss & Co. is fortunate to have called San Francisco home for more than 160 years. We are therefore honored to join Tipping Point and our neighbors in the Bay Area to find real long-term solutions to end homelessness in our shared city.”

— Chip Bergh, President and CEO, Levi Strauss & Co.

“We not only believe every San Franciscan has a fundamental right to dignified housing, and space for themselves and their loved ones to flourish, but that San Franciscans working together can address the homelessness crisis.”

— Jennifer Friedenbach, Executive Director, Coalition on Homelessness

“Homelessness is a statewide emergency, and a stain on the Bay Area. Every resident, business, and public official has an obligation to become part of the solution. The Bay Area Council is all-in on building the shelters and supportive housing needed to address this crisis.”

— Jim Wundeman, President and CEO, Bay Area Council

“We all have a role to play in reducing homelessness in the Bay Area. The 49ers are proud to join with Tipping Point and so many other organizations in their effort to secure homes for 1100 people in SF.”

— Jed York, CEO, San Francisco 49ers

“Homeless families are always hidden. You will be surprised—you can walk right by a person and not know they are homeless. I've worked here for a number of years in different capacities. I've invested a lot of myself and my daughter in this community. Don't always assume the worst about people. Support things that are going to help.”

— Tracey Mixon, Peer Organizer, Coalition on Homelessness

“I am honored to join All In. The ONLY way that SF will manage care for our unhoused neighbors is to form a robust coalition to combine innovative approaches with responsible oversight of our homelessness response system.”

— Del Seymour, Founder, Code Tenderloin

“Many years ago, I was homeless on the hard, cold streets of SF. Nights were long and it was a struggle to stay hopeful. A home is connection, and safety, and roots. A home is belonging. Housing—and investing in support for it—makes all our communities stronger all across the City. We all need a place to be, and we know that stable housing supports both physical and emotional health.”

— Joe Wilson, Executive Director, Hospitality House

“Business is proud to support the All In initiative as we all have a stake in housing our City's most vulnerable population. It will take all of us working together to create housing and lead us one step further in ending homelessness in San Francisco.”

— Rodney Fong, CEO, San Francisco Chamber of Commerce

“We have a legacy of service in the communities where we work and live. We think we can make a meaningful difference by focusing our resources on local challenges like homelessness here in San Francisco. In other cities, we’re addressing other man-made disasters.”

— Rhonda Johnson, President, AT&T California

“With all this money, there is not enough room for us...there’s nothing to turn to, that feels crazy when so many people have severe needs.”

— Sarah Walsh, unhoused San Francisco resident

“Homelessness looks different for different communities and we need to respect all those differences. We focus on the whole person. Being able to provide housing is important because health starts with stability.”

— Joi Jackson-Morgan, Executive Director, Third Street Youth Clinic

“We're joining the All In campaign to share what we know—that homelessness is solvable by making any instance of it rare, brief and one-time. At Larkin Street, we have over 35 years' experience proving that fact, with three out of four young people who complete our housing programs exiting street life. We cannot afford to become hopeless, we must come together to bolster solutions that work. Please join us in investing in hope.”

— Sherilyn Adams, Executive Director, Larkin Street Youth Services

“When we talk about solutions to homelessness, we must talk about opportunity. Right now, many of our neighbors lack the opportunity to access resources that they need to thrive. We need to go upstream and ensure that our children and families have opportunities for a strong education, adequate health care, and workforce preparation. Ensuring those opportunities will help us prevent homelessness in the first instance.”

— Martha Ryan, Executive Director, Homeless Prenatal Project

“We get a bad picture painted about us. Living on the streets is not the easiest. Don't complain, lobby for a change.”

— Nate, Youth Team Lead, Downtown Streets Team

“Dignity Health has been deeply engaged in providing support for people who have become homeless for more than 40 years. We understand the issue from a San Francisco as well as California wide perspective and have helped build affordable housing, underwritten community clinics and expanded mental health services. Especially given the recent rise in homelessness, Tipping Points latest efforts are important and we are glad to be working with them.”

— Wade Rose, Vice President of External & Government Relations, Dignity Health

“Every person should have access to a warm, safe, home – it is unconscionable that we let people live on our streets. San Francisco is rich with creativity, generosity, and innovation – all of which is being leveraged by Tipping Point’s All In campaign to shift this reality. HealthRIGHT 360 provides healthcare to over 9,000 San Franciscans, most of whom are experiencing homeless – we thank Tipping Point for your vision and your leadership, and are proud to be a committed partner in the fight to improve the health, safety, and wellness of people experiencing homelessness.”

— Vitka Eisen, MSW, Ed.D, President and CEO, HealthRIGHT 360

“We've joined multiple critical cross-company collaborations with other tech companies that have a focus on addressing homelessness and supporting nonprofits who are working in that critical area. Our San Francisco office has a standing meal service weekly and our offices in the Bay Area donate any leftover food to local shelters and organizations. Please connect with us at Box.org if we can support your work in this area.”

— Bryan Breckenridge, Executive Director, Box.org

“We can no longer look at homelessness as a single focus issue. Homelessness is multi-layered, impacts us all, and to a great degree reflects on how well we care for our most vulnerable. In addition to stable housing, so many of our homeless are in need of mental health and substance use treatment. This is why PRC is thrilled to be a part of the All In campaign - raising awareness and mobilizing resources to help secure homes for 1100 deserving individuals.”

— Brett Andrews, CEO, Positive Resource Center

“Based on Mercy Housing's nationwide experience developing permanent supportive housing, we believe that collective community-wide efforts are critical to ending the homelessness crisis. That's why we are so excited to partner with Tipping Point and to join the All In campaign.”

— Doug Shoemaker, President, Mercy Housing California

“Community Housing Partnership is honored to partner with Tipping Point in an effort to educate the public on long-lasting solutions to homelessness in our community. Initiatives such as the All In campaign shine light on meaningful solutions to addressing homelessness, and illustrate how everyone within a broader coalition of citizens has an important role to play in housing our neighbors and bettering our community as a whole. Community Housing Partnership is proud to support this project, and we look forward to seeing the positive, long-lasting impact it will have in ensuring all of our community's most-vulnerable citizens have access to critically-needed housing.”

— Christy Saxton, Chief Programs Officer, Community Housing Partnership

“At Compass, we start with the premise that EVERY child needs a safe and stable place to call home. That's why we're thrilled to sign on to the All In campaign - working together we absolutely can end homelessness in San Francisco and make our community a better place for ALL of us.”

— Erica Kisch, Executive Director, Compass Family Services

“Swords to Plowshares along with key San Francisco partners, has successfully cut veteran homelessness in half since 2013. Our long-term goal of ending veteran homelessness in the city will only be reached with the help of our community. That's why we have joined to support Tipping Point's “All In” campaign to encourage and educate the public on how we can make veteran homelessness rare, brief, and non-recurring once and for all.”

— Michael Blecker, Executive Director, Swords to Plowshares

“CSH is ‘All In’ because everything we’re working to accomplish in San Francisco centers on creating more affordable housing and that’s what this campaign is about,” said Steven Shum, Northern California Associate Director of CSH. We want to send a strong message that the entire spectrum of stakeholders – government, providers, advocates, and anyone else who cares about the future of this community – must come together, collaborate, cooperate and form partnerships to ensure everyone in San Francisco has a home. United, and as one, we can move the needle and prove every person and family matters, making it clear no one will be left to struggle or die on our streets.”

— Steve Shum, Associate Director, Corporation for Supportive Housing \(CSH\)

“Realizing that housing is integral in the success of our workforce development model, Downtown Streets is proud to be All In with Tipping Point and their partners as they engage with all San Franciscans to find sustainable solutions to end homelessness.”

— Jack Hill, Community Engagement Fellow, Downtown Streets Team

“The Bay Area's strength comes from our history of innovation and commitment to social and racial justice for our communities. NPH and our members are proud to be All In with our members, partners, allies, and community leaders to end homelessness and ensure that all of our black, brown, and white neighbors have a safe, stable, affordable place to call home.”

— Amie Fishman, Executive Director, Non-Profit Housing Association of Northern California \(NPH\)
