From Homeless to Housed in San Francisco

SNAPSHOT OF SAN FRANCISCO'S PROGRESS HELPING RESIDENTS EXIT HOMELESSNESS

Examining the Challenge: The 2019 Point-in-Time Count

WHO IS EXPERIENCING HOMELESSNESS IN SF?

On any given night, more than 8,000 San Franciscans experience homelessness — nearly 40% of whom face chronic homelessness.

BLACK AND LGBTQ+ NEIGHBORS ARE DISPROPORTIONATELY AT RISK OF EXPERIENCING HOMELESSNESS.

To address homelessness in San Francisco, we must address systemic inequities that put vulnerable populations at heightened risk. Meeting this crisis with the urgency it requires will take ingenuity, innovation, and a commitment to action.

Exits from Homelessness: 2019

In 2019, 1,155 people transitioned out of homelessness into stable housing throughout San Francisco, thus continuing the progress that the City is making in creating exits out of homelessness.

PEOPLE HOUSED

Over 85% of people who transition into a home with services never experience homelessness again.

Helping People Exit Homelessness in 2020

By increasing the number of available homes with supportive services, we can help more people move off the streets and out of shelters into stable homes throughout the City.

PEOPLE HOUSED

People Housed refers to people who move into both existing and newly-created supportive housing.

444 Planned Homes

453 Total New PSH

The City is currently forecast to build or master lease at least 1,100 permanent supportive homes by 2022.

Master Leasing involves the City leasing blocks of rooms or entire residential hotels, and then making them available for people exiting homelessness.

The Flex Pool is a supplemental strategy that secures private market homes for people to exit homelessness by establishing relationships with landlords and providing tenants with rental subsidies and supportive services to help them stay housed for the long term.

Our Commitment

All In will track San Francisco's collective progress creating new housing for people to exit homelessness in 2020, and regularly publish updates with analysis and opportunities to engage. We are working with our public sector and non-profit service partners to accelerate these exits and create more new housing because San Francisco will be a better city when everyone has a home.

“Tracking our progress and holding each other accountable for our commitments is crucial to meeting the challenge of ending homelessness in San Francisco.”
